Click Quick Links > CAC > CAC Resource Center

The screenshot shows the AKO homepage in Microsoft Internet Explorer. The browser's address bar displays <https://www.us.army.mil/suite/portaltop.do?pp=portal.home>. The page header includes the AKO logo and a welcome message for Scott Sikorski. A navigation bar contains links for Home, My Workspace, Site Map, My Favorites, Quick Links, and Self Service. The Quick Links dropdown menu is open, showing options like AKO Tips & Training, AKO Services, Army Links, CAC, Knowledge Networks, and White Pages. The CAC option is highlighted, and its sub-menu is visible, with the CAC Resource Center link selected. The main content area features AKO News and Army Wide Announcements, including a recent article about CAL introducing a new center.

Go to “Preparing a PC for CAC usage? Start here!”

The screenshot shows the AKO CAC Resource Center page. The breadcrumb trail indicates the path: AKO Home > Inside AKO > CAC Resource Center. The page title is "CAC Resource Center". A navigation bar includes links for About AKO, AKO Administrators, CAC, Demos, Policies, Single Sign-on (SSO), and Training. The main heading is "Welcome to the AKO Common Access Card (CAC) Resource Center". Below the heading, there is a link to "Preparing a PC for CAC usage? Start here!". A feedback section mentions that the page was updated in response to user feedback, specifically regarding the CAC General Information page and the CAC Usage channel. The page also features sections for "CAC Installation and Registration" and "CAC Middleware Notice".
